

DIED FOR STRIKING AT PRESIDENT DIAZ

ARROYO ANTILFOE LYNCHED THIS MORNING.

Twenty of the Avengers Have Been Arrested, and It Is Said That They Will Be Shot—Sensational Scenes in the Mexican Capital During the Day.

Mexico City, Sept. 17.—[Special]—Ignacio Arroyo Antilfoe, who attempted to assassinate President Diaz, was taken from jail this morning and lynched. Twenty of the lynchmen were arrested. All will be shot the representatives of the government desire.

The attempt to assassinate President Diaz occurred yesterday afternoon. The central thoroughfare of the city extending from the Great plaza to Alameda, or the public park, and known by various names, were thronged by thousands of people Thursday morning, assembled to see the military procession, usual on independence day, pass by. The scene was immensely picturesque, the historic avenue, called by George Augustus Sala one of the famous streets of the world, being all aglow with color, and the Spanish-fashioned balconies filled with ladies in brilliant toilets.

After a short wait the murmur ran through the crowd that the president was coming and on foot, dressed in the uniform of a general of division. The president, bowing right and left to the applauding crowds, came, immediately behind him being General Pradillo, the governor of the national palace, who served in the same capacity under Emperor Maximilian. Following them were other officers, cabinet ministers, etc.

Suddenly, near the Alameda, there was a disturbance in the crowd on the sidewalk, and a well-built, muscular man, with flowing black hair and mustache forced his way by a tremendous effort past the gendarmes and soldiers and jumped between the president and General Pradillo and the chief of staff, Monasterio, and dealt a blow at the back of the president's neck, but the violence of the blow was diminished by the fact that he was crowded between the president and officers immediately following him. The president turned around and caught sight of his assailant and resumed his march with admirable coolness.

Meantime Chief of Staff Monasterio hit the man with a cane, but he turned, seized it and broke it. Gen. Pradillo then hit him a powerful blow in the neck, felling him.

The gendarmes rushed forward and some mounted officers and police seized and pinioned him. He was taken through a side street and led away, the people shouting: "Give him to us; we will hang him." But the gendarmes succeeded in keeping their prisoner, being re-enforced by cavalrymen, the great crowd shouting and running behind. The man was taken to the palace and stripped, but no weapon was found on his person. Various stories are told regarding his design on the president, one theory being that he was armed with a dagger, as many police believe, but if so he must have thrown it away, as no weapon was found on him. It seems almost certain that he intended harm, for at the moment of dealing the blow he used opprobrious terms and was most maniacal.

The president on returning to the palace was cheered by the crowds, and an immense crowd assembled in front of the palace, cheering and shouting and calling for the president.

President Diaz took the matter very calmly and advised that the man be kept in custody and be brought before him to explain his motive, apparently believing that the man had no murderous intent, but the police feel that the case is one that demands the deepest investigation, and they counseled his being turned over to the military tribunal, as he had assaulted their commander in chief while in uniform.

Gen. Powell Clayton, the United States minister, immediately called upon President Diaz and offered his congratulations, as did other diplomats and many other prominent people.

Some think the assailant merely made the assault for the sake of gaining notoriety, having read the accounts of the assassination of Canovas.

Methodists Talk of Missions.

Rushville, Ill., Sept. 17.—At the Illinois Methodist Conference in session in this city the presiding elders rendered their annual reports Thursday morning. In the afternoon Rev. J. W. Miller of Charleston delivered the missionary sermon. At night Rev. P. M. Buck delivered an address on missionary work.

J. U. GRIFFIN TAKES POISON. NEW ORLEANS PEST KILLS ONE MORE

Witness in the Shepherd (Mich.) Case Is Found in His Cornfield.

Saginaw, Mich., Sept. 17.—Joseph U. Griffin took opium Wednesday night, lay down in a cornfield back of his house and when found an hour and a half after was dead. It was Griffin who said he recognized the man leaving Shepherd in a mysterious rig on the morning of the Struble murder, but on the stand could testify to nothing. Griffin was restored to consciousness. He says: "I suppose people will say I took the poison to kill myself because of the Shepherd business. That is not true. I do not know anything about the Struble case. I simply remarked while at Alma that if a person did know anything and opened his mouth he probably would be killed. I took the opium to ease pain in my head, which is the result of an accident a year ago."

Mrs. Griffin said her husband declared he had taken poison to kill himself. Griffin was hurt on the railroad a year ago.

PALMER IS PRESIDENT.

Illinois Federation of Labor Elects Officers and Adjourns.

Bloomington, Ill., Sept. 17.—The fifteenth annual convention of the Illinois Federation of Labor adjourned Thursday night to meet in Decatur next year. Officers were elected and important revision of the constitution made prior to the close.

The new president is M. G. Palmer of Peoria, the president of the Peoria Typographical Union, and leader of the Peoria delegation. P. F. Doyle of Chicago defeated Walter Bush, who sought re-election for secretary-treasurer. U. G. Hinman of Springfield was chosen vice-president by acclamation.

The morning session was featureless save for the adoption of a conservative resolution upon the affair at Hazleton, Pa. The resolution denounces the slaughter, and calls upon the authorities to do their duty in bringing to swift justice all guilty parties, and holds them responsible for a possible repetition of a revolution upon American soil should they fail.

The constitution was revised in a number of minor particulars, the most important preventing persons holding political positions from being eligible to offices of the federation.

The following expression upon the mining situation in the state was adopted:

"Whereas, During the recent struggle between the miners and operators to secure living wages several mines in this state, notably at Decatur, continued at work, thereby decreasing the chances of success for the miners by supplying coal to those places on strike; therefore be it

"Resolved, That the Illinois State Federation of Labor, in convention assembled, declare the product of these mines to be unfair, and that the convention earnestly request all union men to boycott all coal taken from these places."

The report of the secretary-treasurer showed total receipts for the year of $526.46 and expenditures $397.76. The receipts for the anti-convict fund were $121.75.

Mr. Garnett is regarded as the most eminent authority on the Pacific coast in matters of finance and currency.

The committee has been called to meet at the Arlington Hotel in Washington Sept. 22.

Great Dismal Swamp Is Afire.

Norfolk, Va., Sept. 17.—The Great Dismal Swamp of Virginia and North Carolina, covering an area of perhaps 400 square miles, is afire from one end to the other, the result of an unprecedented drought and excessively hot weather. No one inhabits the swamp but wild animals, therefore no attempt was made to check the flames.

Suit Against Durand Cashier.

Rockford, Ill., Sept. 17.—Suit has been commenced against the bondsmen of C. A. Norton, the absconding cashier of the Durand bank, for school funds held by him.

ANOTHER DEATH REPORTED THIS MORNING.

All the Schools Are Closed, and Still the Fever Is Feared To Be Gaining Ground—Authorities in Neighboring States Have Taken Strict Precautions.

New Orleans, Sept. 17.—[Special]—There was one death reported here from yellow fever today. The State Board of Health has decided to order the public schools closed until such time as the yellow fever shall have died out. A yellow-fever hospital will be established in this city to accommodate indigent patients, or those cases discovered in crowded houses.

New Orleans has declared quarantine against Nittayouma, Miss., where one death occurred Thursday. Advice by steamer from Port Limon, Costa Rica, indicate that yellow fever exists there. The state universities of Mississippi and Louisiana and the leading county and parish educational institutions have postponed their opening dates because of yellow jack.

Generally considered, the yellow fever situation may be said to have become even worse in the last twenty-four hours than at any time heretofore. This cannot be justly considered as relating to New Orleans, for the spread here has been slow indeed, but in other infected sections deaths have occurred and several new cases have been reported. Mississippi shows the most advance, and the people of that state are scared worse than they have been at any time in their lives. Two-thirds of the people have left Jackson, the two newspaper offices have been abandoned by their forces and both announced a suspension because every one in the office had cleared out. Jackson has considerable reason to be alarmed, because of her nearness to Edwards, Miss., a little town which has seventeen cases of pronounced yellow fever and thirty-five cases noted as very suspicious.

At Nittayouma, Miss., a town not far from Edwards, the scourge has taken a firm hold. There are upwards of fifteen cases there already and Thursday the first death took place. At Biloxi, Miss., several new cases were reported, but only one has been thus far declared officially to be yellow jack.

Mobile, Ala., the point which people generally regard as having been the opening wedge for the fever, because of its lax quarantine regulations governing fruit importations, had its first death Thursday—a man named Hagan, a carpenter from Chicago, who went to Mobile for work.

Do Danger in Illinois.

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 17.—A telegram was received here from Dr. Egan, secretary of the Illinois State Board of Health, who is now in charge of the situation at Cairo, Ill., which says that while danger of infection is possible, the right inspection being conducted at Cairo by the Illinois officers will successfully prevent the importation of the plague into Illinois.

NEW WORLD'S RECORD.

M. Cordang's Marvelous Feat on an English Track.

London, Sept. 17.—M. Cordang, the "fast flying Dutchman," smashed the world's twenty-four hour bicycle record Wednesday by riding 16 miles and 340 yards in a day. The record-breaking feat took place on the record-breaking wooden track at the Crystal Palace in England's metropolis. Such riding was deemed impossible by American wheelmen, and to the average mind it is hard to conceive that a human being is possessed of the power to maintain the speed of an express train for that length of time.

How Baney Learned His Role.

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 17.—The Hendricks county grand jury did not take a vote Thursday on the proposition to indict Noah Baney Guy Van Tassel and "Kid" Whitney for the murder of the wife of the Rev. William Hinshaw, but it is semi-officially announced that no indictments will be returned. It comes to light that John Short, one of the witnesses, told the jury that Baney was furnished with plans, pictures and instructions for the trip to Belleville, and that he spent three weeks getting ready for the "feat" of going over the route and finding the house. Baney, at the request of the jury, produced the plans and pictures, and it is the understanding that the jury decided at that time not to return indictments.

May Quarantine Cattle.

Washington, Sept. 17.—Secretary Wilson is informed that the board of live stock commissioners of Illinois probably will quarantine all cattle shipped to that state from Kentucky.

Relatives and Friends of Lynched Men Demand Vengeance.

Osgood, Ind., Sept. 17.—There is likely to be an awful reckoning for the slaughter of the five men in the Versailles jail. All the victims have many relatives and friends, who have determined that somebody must suffer for the wholesale lynching. Everybody here feels that more blood will be shed. There is a feeling that the mob acted hastily as to Levi and Jenkins. The only testimony against them was Hostetter's statement that they were involved in the Wooley burglary.

SHOOTING A FRIEND COSTS HIM $3,000

S. M. SCHLICHT'S DRUNKEN FREAK WAS COSTLY.

Byron Evans, Who Had Two Bullets Put in Him, Couldn't See the Joke, and Made It Cost His Companion Quite a Lump of Cold Cash.

Port Washington, Wis., Sept. 17.—[Special]—The jury in the case of Byron Evans vs S. M. Schlicht brought in a verdict of $2500 damages and $500 exemplary damages this morning. Evans sued Schlicht for $25,000 for injuries sustained by Schlicht's shooting him during a drunken spree in Milwaukee last fall. Evans is a prominent Milwaukee business man and the defendant is a prominent Sheboygan man.

DEPENDS ON FRANCE.

Bank of England's Silver Reserve Plan Explained.

London, Sept. 17.—At the semi-annual meeting of the Bank of England Thursday the governor, George Sandeman, said:

"You are probably aware of the proposals laid before the government in the summer by the United States and France, whereby this country might increase its use of silver, as a contribution to an international agreement which, while not affecting our gold standard, might enable the mints of France and America to resume free coinage. Among the proposals was one asking the bank to hold the amount of silver permissible under the act of 1844 as against its notes."

The governor then read a letter dated July 29, addressed to the chancellor of the exchequer, Sir Michael Hicks-Beach. It was as follows: "Referring to our conversation, we beg to say the bank is prepared to carry out what is laid down as permissible in the bank charter, viz., to hold one-fifth of the bullion held against its note issue in silver, provided always that the French mint is again open to the free coinage of silver and that the price at which silver is procurable and saleable is satisfactory."

Replying to questions, the governor said the bank had no negotiations with the United States monetary commissioners, adding: "We have bought no silver. All we have done is to agree, under certain circumstances, to carry out what is permissible under the act of 1844."

Berlin, Sept. 17.—The National Zeitung, referring to the intimation in the Times of Sept. 11 that the bank of England was prepared to hold in silver one-fifth of the bullion held against its note issue, says: "The unfavorable reception the announcement has met with from all the organs of British trade leaves no room for doubt as to the opinion of the British commercial bodies and as to the ultimate fate of the latest American attempt to secure for the silver mineowners with the aid of Europe a rise in silver as a reward for their support of the McKinley tariff policy and to keep the silverites in good humor."

WORK IS RESUMED.

Pittsburg Miners Back After Three Months' Idleness.

Pittsburg, Pa., Sept. 17.—After nearly three months' idleness between 15,000 and 18,000 coal miners in the Pittsburg district have returned to work in accordance with the action taken at Wednesday's convention, authorizing the men to resume work in all mines complying with the provisions of the scale of 65 cents, adopted at Columbus.

The remainder of the 23,000 miners of the district will be at work before the close of the week.

It is estimated that the strike, which lasted sixty-five working days, cost the people of the Pittsburg district from $5,000,000 to $7,000,000. Of this amount the miners lost about $2,250,000 in wages.

The strike against the De Armitis will continue indefinitely, arrangements having been made to assess the working miners 5 per cent of their wages to defray the expenses of keeping up the fight until the 65 cent rate is made uniform throughout the district.

MORE BLOOD MAY BE SHED.

Relatives and Friends of Lynched Men Demand Vengeance.

Osgood, Ind., Sept. 17.—There is likely to be an awful reckoning for the slaughter of the five men in the Versailles jail. All the victims have many relatives and friends, who have determined that somebody must suffer for the wholesale lynching. Everybody here feels that more blood will be shed. HASTY CALL FOR THE MILITARY

Further Trouble in Pennsylvania—House Broken Into

Hazleton, Pa., Sept. 17.—A message came from General Gobin's headquarters at 2 o'clock this morning from Cranberry that a body of strikers was breaking into the powder-house of Edward Turbach. Request was made for a detachment of troops.

The night watchman at the powder-house was one of the deputy sheriffs who participated in the shooting of strikers near Latimer last Friday.

WHY THE MINERS GAVE IT UP.

Official Circular Tells the Story of the Great Strike.

Columbus, Ohio, Sept. 17.—The official circular declaring off the great coal strike was issued from the headquarters of the United Mine Workers Thursday. It recounts the progress of the strike from the beginning, the objects aimed at and the result reached.

The circular informs the miners that the ten days' limit will expire Saturday, and then all the miners who can secure the wages demanded by the scale may resume work. In explanation of the fact that less than the wages demanded in the strike was accepted the circular says it was done in view of the fact that the markets were being supplied; "that the suspension was not growing; that the miners could not be induced to respond, were fast approaching the point of exhaustion and could not continue the fight much longer; that the supplies were becoming so limited that pressing want could not be appeased, causing a resumption of work in many cases at operators' terms; that organized labor was called upon to devote their time, men and money to their own affairs, and could not be reasonably expected to continue and indefinitely to fight out the battle; that the sufferings of the hungry men, blameless women and innocent children appealed to us not to continue a struggle where the result would only be disastrous, entailing greater miseries and more hardships."

Illinois Miners Resume.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 17.—The coal miners' strike is over so far as the district supplying the St. Louis market is concerned. Seventeen mines in the sixth Illinois district have resumed work. It is probable that all the small operators in the district will come into line before the end of the week. The representatives of the strikers were met by seventeen of the independent operators. The men submitted a proposition for a scale of 37 cents a ton top weight, mine run. After a long consultation it was accepted.

Hitch in Indiana.

Terre Haute, Ind., Sept. 17.—The Indiana miners and operators held separate conventions Thursday, and at night a joint committee took up the consideration of the wages scale. The hitch is in the northern Indiana field, where the operators think they are liable to be subjected to competition with cheaper mined coal from the Danville or Grape Creek, Illinois, fields, as heretofore. The miners say this is not likely, because the Illinois miners are united and determined to remain out until their operators pay the scale.

WILL PUNISH LYNCHERS.

Gov. Mount Says All Means Are to Be Used to Find the Lawbreakers.

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 17.—Gov. Mount reiterates his declaration that there shall be no rest for the officers of the law in Ripley county until the men who participated in the lynching Wednesday morning have been punished. Deputy Attorney-General Moores was instructed to remain in the county and assist the prosecuting attorney in discovering the lynchmen.

Osgood, Ind., Sept. 17.—Esquire Laswell, the acting coroner, concluded the inquest on the bodies of the five lynched men at noon Thursday and rendered a verdict that Gordon and Andrews had come to their deaths by hanging, and Jenkins, Levi and Schuler by being clubbed or shot to death. The verdict ended by saying that the slayers of the men were unknown.

POINT FOR LUETGERT.

Expert Witness for the State Admits He Was Mistaken.

Chicago, Sept. 17.—The main points developed in the Luetgert murder trial yesterday were as follows: Luetgert's lawyer caused Expert Dorsey to say that he was mistaken in placing the identified human femur on the left side; Dorsey admitted that he found his error after Dr. Allport, expert for the defense, called his attention to it; the temporal bone was declared shattered in sawing and may be excluded.

HE IS SHORT CITY CASH

Edgerton Treasurer Has Taken $8,000.

HE HAS BEEN BUYING WHEAT FOR YEARS.

He Began Speculating Eight Years Ago.

HE HAS BEEN VERY POPULAR WITH ALL PARTIES.

Several Times He Ran on Both Tickets and Was Elected Without Opposition—Disclosure of Shortage Came When Bonds Matured—Resignation Handed to the Mayor—Bondsmen Are Held to the Amount of $20,000.

The Edgerton treasury is empty; City Treasurer R. G. Robinson has resigned and there is a shortage of $7,000 or $8,000 in his accounts. There is also yet to be accounted for $1,300 worth of license notes, 90 day paper put up by the saloon keepers at the beginning of the license year. These are understood to have been put into the bank by Robinson and the cash used in his own deal.

Speculators in wheat account for the shortage.

It is understood that for eight years he has been using city money.

No Money to Pay Bonds.

The disclosure of the deficit came about through the maturing of school bonds. The bonds are held in Madison and it was supposed there was plenty of money in the treasury to meet them. Robinson called in the mayor this morning, however, handed him his resignation and said that the treasury was empty.

Had Served For Many Years.

Robinson has been treasurer of Edgerton for twelve or fifteen years. He dealt in stock and wool before that and was active in the democratic party. He was very popular and for several years ran on both tickets. This was the case in the last campaign. He is a man over fifty years of age and his family consists of his mother and daughter. His son lives in another state and his wife died some time ago.

This statement was a great surprise although it was known by many that he had been speculating in wheat. He began buying wheat eight years ago, using the city money for the purpose. His own means were small and soon exhausted but he managed to keep somewhat ahead on the wheat deal with city funds until this summer.

Sold Wheat Short at 70 Cents.

The understanding is that he went in on the bear side of the market early this year when wheat was about 70 cents. The constant call for margins as wheat rose to $1 were more than even a city treasurer could stand. In the language of the street he was "bucking a rising market" for three months.

Edgerton will lose nothing by the default as the treasurer's bond is for $20,000. The bondsmen are Wilson brothers, C. F. Mabbett, Robert Attlesey and Hy. Ebbott.

The Edgerton common council held a special session this afternoon to consider the matter.

It was a minute late and was just entering the switch when the passenger train crashed into it. The two locomotives came together with such impetus that they were totally wrecked.

B. F. MILLS' CHANGE OF HEART

He Says It Is Not as Radical as Has Been Reported.

Rev. B. Fay Mills, the noted evangelist, who has preached in this city, at the Congregational church, had a letter in The Congregationalist this week announcing how he has modified his religious views. He says that his present position is the result of a long conscious and unconscious transformation by which he has lost some of his theological opinions, but that he had preserved all the religion he ever possessed. In doctrine, he asserts that for several years he has been "gradually modifying his theories," and that he never in his evangelistic work has preached the old school theology which has always seemed to him "unnatural and immoral." Mr. Mills says that he has not joined formally the Unitarian denomination, but "with its freedom of thought, broad tolerance, and spiritual basis of fellowship" he has been united for some time. He believes in "spiritual and practical ecclesiastical tests and abominates all sorts of sectarianism." He adds that he has been assured by leaders in the Presbyterian and Congregational churches that they hold practically the same opinion with him and "that they hold it to be their duty to stay where they are until the whole church is leavened or the authorities come to pitch them out."

MARKED GOLDEN WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. William Blanchard Gather Their Family About Them.

Mr. and Mrs. William Blanchard, well known in this city, celebrated their golden wedding in Emmetsburg, Iowa, September 8. Mr. and Mrs. Blanchard were old residents of Janesville and came back here on a visit a year ago. They remained here until July when they returned to Iowa. The Palo Alto Leader devotes considerable space to the celebration and says:

"After dinner and the presentation of a number of appropriate gifts from those present, the family listened to a short address by Grandpa Blanchard, which was full of reminiscences suggested by the occasion, and wholesome advice to the younger generation."

"Grandpa Blanchard passed his 80th birthday in July last and Grandma Blanchard is now 73 years of age. Both are hale and hearty, in the best of health and bid fair to live for many years longer. They were married in Western New York and in the following year removed to the territory of Wisconsin taking up a homestead near Oshkosh. Later they removed to Rock county, Wisconsin, where they lived till 1831, in which year they came to Palo Alto and settled in Silver Lake township."

"Grandpa and Grandma Blanchard are living exponents of the benefits of lifelong temperance and honest living, backed up by a sturdy New England ancestry which they take pleasure in tracing back beyond the time of the American revolution, and which their posterity may well be proud to inherit."

Encouragement For the Feeble.

So long as the falling embers of vitality are capable of being re-kindled into a warm and genial glow, just so long there is hope for the weak and emaciated invalid. Let him not therefore, despair, but derive encouragement from this, and from the further fact that there is a restorative most potent in renewing the depleted powers of a broken down system. Yes, thanks to its unexampled tonic virtues, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is daily reviving strength in the bodies and hope in the minds of the feeble and nervous. Appetite, refreshing sleep, the acquisition of flesh and color, are blessings attendant upon the reparative processes which the priceless invigorant speedily initiates and carries to a successful conclusion. Digestion is restored, the blood fertilized, and sustenance afforded to each life-sustaining organ by the Bitters, which is inoffensive even to the feminine palate, vegetable in composition, and thoroughly safe. Use it, and regain vigor!

FIBROID TUMOR

Expelled by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Interview With Mrs. B. A. Lombard.

I have reason to think that I would not be here now if it had not been for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It cured me of a fibroid tumor in my womb.

Doctors could do nothing for me, and they could not cure me at the hospital. I will tell you about it:

I had been in my usual health, but had worked quite hard. When my monthly period came on, I flowed very badly. The doctor gave me medicine, but it did me no good. He said the flow must be stopped if possible, and he must find the cause of my trouble.

Upon examination, he found there was a Fibroid Tumor in my womb, and gave me treatment without any benefit whatever. About that time a lady called on me, and recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, said she owed her life to it. I said I would try it, and did. Soon after the flow became more natural and regular. I still continued taking the Compound for some time. Then the doctor made an examination again, and found everything all right. The tumor had passed away and that dull ache was gone.—Mrs. B. A. LOMBARD, Box 71, Westlake, Mass.

Certainly you don't want to suffer with dyspepsia, constipation, sick headache, sallow skin and loss of appetite. You have never tried De Witt's Little Early Risers for these common complaints or you would have been cured. They are small pills, but great regulators. C. D. Stevens.

Moments are useless if trilled away; and they are dangerously wasted if consumed by delay in cases where One Minute Cough Cure would bring immediate relief. C. D. Stevens.

TWO MEN HURT AT THE SHOW

Management of the Wild West Settlement Rather Than Be Sued

During Buffalo Bill's Wild West performance at Elgin, Wednesday, Chris. Witte of Bloomington, was knocked senseless by a falling tent pole. He then threatened a damage suit but settled for $100. Before the day was over Charles Rogers was badly hurt by a wagon and the show settled for $50.

Running sores, indolent ulcers and similar troubles, even though of many years standing may be cured by using De Witt's Witch Hazel Salve. It soothes, strengthens and heals. It is a great pile cure. C. D. Stevens.

A Famous Old Lady.

In a beautiful house in Brussels there lives an old lady, Mme. Henrietta Ronner, whose work has won her fame and money. Like Rosa Bonheur, she is an animal painter, but instead of horses and cows her specialty is cats. In the early part of the century her father, Joseph Augustus Knip, was well known in Amsterdam as a flower and landscape painter and educated his daughter in art. Even when his eyesight failed in 1832 he continued to give her instruction by listening to her descriptions of her work. Her destiny was to be that of a portrait painter, but she never liked it and determined to study animals. At the age of 16 she exhibited at Dusseldorf the picture of "A Cat in the Window," which attracted much attention, but the picture which made her reputation was "The Friend of Man," a canvas 6 feet by 8, representing an old man weeping over the death of one of his dogs, which had been used for drawing a cart. The technical skill and the wealth of emotion put into this work were highly praised. Very soon afterward she turned her attention to cats, and she has painted every form and attitude and character and kind of cat and kitten. The usual way that she works is by placing a cat in a glass case made for the purpose, with cushions which invite the animal to a natural position. When puss changes her pose, Mme. Ronner puts aside that work and begins another study. Although 75 years of age, Mme. Ronner looks 20 years younger, save for her snowy white hair. She is upright, and her complexion is remarkably fresh. What is most strange is the fact that one never sees a cat at Mme. Ronner's. Whenever she wants to paint one she has a model brought to her.—Chicago Record.

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

1575—Henry Bullinger, Swiss reformer, died at Zurich.

1743—Jean Antoine, marquis de Condorcet, mathematician and friend of Benjamin Franklin, was born in Picardy; died by poison, self-administered, while imprisoned by Robespierre, 1794.

1783—Samuel Prout, famous painter in water colors, died in London.

1862—Battle of Antietam, the bloodiest single day's battle ever fought on American soil. As a result the Confederates abandoned the invasion of the north and retired to Virginia, and out of gratitude for the victory Lincoln made his proclamation of emancipation; the struggle was between the Army of Northern Virginia, under Lee, and the Army of the Potomac, under McClellan.

1864—Walter Savage Landor, scholar and poet, died at Florence; born 1775.

1871—Mont Cenis tunnel opened.

1894—Remarkable naval battle in the Yalu river between Chinese and Japanese.

DISEASE AND ITS CAUSE

New Orleans has decided to wash as well as sweep her streets. Unfortunately the cleaning operation arrives a little behind the pestilence.

Few communities realize the importance of cleaning up the streets and alleys and keeping them clean. Yellow fever and cholera are not the only diseases that feed on filth. Their visits are infrequent, but there are other maladies of a similar origin that are seldom absent from cities, and their victims in the long run outnumber those of the pestilence.

It costs something to keep a city clean, but little in comparison with what it costs to keep it dirty. When quarantine is proclaimed the loss in business is heavy, and in case of a serious epidemic runs into millions. New Orleans is finding out that nothing pays a city more in dollars and cents than an efficient health department.

PLATFORM HASN'T KEPT WELL

The funniest platform of the year is that adopted by the Iowa silver democracy. It was framed in June without allowing for the changes likely to occur before November. One plank reads: "Prosperity has not made its appearance; the mills and shops are closing down; the army of the unemployed is growing larger and the farmers of Iowa are marketing their products at lower prices than ever before." When the platform happens to run in the column along side market reports the clash is something startling.

Chippewa county has a population of only 28,000, and is abundantly supplied with sand, and pine stumps, but it has held a county fair, at which there were 20,000 entries, and 5,000 admission tickets were sold on Tuesday. Rock has a population of 50,000 and its soil is a mine of wealth, yet a fair is held and mortgages eat up the agricultural society's holdings. Does Rock need more sand?

Rev. Hugh O. Pentecost, once widely known for his unique pulpit utterances, but who for the last five years has devoted himself to the practice of law, has returned to the ministry, and started a church, which he calls "Unity Congregation."

Senator Murphy wants his son-in-law, Hugh Grant, who obtained considerable notoriety once upon a time by making a daughter of Dick Croker a little present of $10,000, to be Tammany's candidate for mayor of greater New York.

While there are probably some who begrudge the venerable General Longstreet the happiness of his honeymoon, there are many who regret that he should have written so freely in the midst of it to the newspapers.

It is regrettable that the senate of Hawaii should have got ahead of the United States in ratifying that annexation treaty, although it will make no difference in the result—the annexation of Hawaii, which has never been in doubt.

TO CURE DYSPEPSIA.

A New Remedy Which Will Do It.

Chronic dyspepsia is considered by many people to be nearly if not quite incurable. No good reason can be given why they think so except that perhaps they have tried various remedies without much, if any benefit. But the progress in every branch of medicine has been such that among other things a lasting cure for indigestion in its chronic form as well as temporary has been discovered and is now placed before the public strictly on its merits as a permanent cure for all stomach troubles or difficulties with the digestive organs.

This new treatment is called Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, being put up in tablet form so as to be easily taken and also to preserve its good qualities for an indefinite length of time.

This remedy has produced surprising effects in the worst forms of indigestion, and in many cases where ordinary remedies failed to give even relief, Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have fully cured.

The splendid results from using this preparation are owing to the fact that it is prepared and intended for Dyspepsia and stomach troubles only. It is of a cure-all like so many advertised remedies, claiming to cure everything under the sun, but it is claimed that it is a certain cure for Dyspepsia and anyone suffering from any form of indigestion cannot fail to get permanent relief and cure from its use.

It is so prepared and the ingredients are of such a nature that when the tablets are taken into the stomach they digest the food no matter whether the stomach is in good working order or not. You get sustenance and strength to mind and body by reason of the food being properly digested and at the same time the much abused stomach is allowed to rest and recuperate.

Notwithstanding the great benefits it derives from Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, the price is but 50c for full sized package and all druggists sell them.

SHE TALKED OF ART IN THE LOWLANDS

MRS BINGHAM'S LECTURE ON DUTCH ART.

She Appears Before the Janesville League and Sketches the Characteristics That Distinguished the Men of Holland From Their Contemporaries.

Mrs. E. J. Bingham stood before the ladies of the Janesville Art League this afternoon and described graphically the essential characteristics of the Dutch and Flemish masters.

The lecture was given in Mrs. James Mills' parlors and was heard by quite a number outside of the league.

When Mrs. Bingham spoke here before her subject was "The Twelve Great Paintings of the World." She recalled this fact today and reminded her hearers that while the Flemish were represented in that glorious twelve, the Dutch were not. It might almost be said, however, that in Ruben's "Descent From The Cross," the Dutch as well as the Flemish found expression.

Had a Common Origin
The beginnings of the schools were identical. It was the peculiar environments of the Dutch artists that gave their paintings so distinctive a character. Their humid atmosphere put the glorious achievements of the Italian fresco painters beyond them. They were at war with the world and in their sea-girt stronghold were developing a race of men, hardy, self-reliant, full of confidence in themselves and in one another, and loath to take the example of any other nation. It was natural that they should paint what they saw about them; natural that with their great national pride they should not borrow inspiration from other lands. Moreover, they were at odds with the Catholic church and there was no incentive for religious pictures such as filled every gallery of Italy.

Manner Rather Than Matter
Summing up the Dutch school in a sententious Mrs. Bingham was inclined to say that in the time of their greatest glory the Dutch artist attached more importance to technique than to subject. They took for their subjects whatever met their eyes in the quiet corners to which they had gone to escape the noise of battle. They painted tavern interiors and domestic scenes and when they turned to national subjects they painted the portraits of the men who had won their battles, not attempting to picture the battles themselves. It was a curious fact, Mrs. Bingham pointed out, that not even in the days of the nation's greatest glory did Dutch painters picture any of their naval or land triumphs, by land or by sea.

At the close of the lecture there was a running fire of questions from the ladies in the audience, which brought out many interesting suggestions.

And the Rigor of the Game

By ROBERT BARR.

[Copyright, 1897, by the Author.]

Old Mr. Saunders went home with bowed head and angry brow. He had not known that Dick was in the habit of coming in late, but he had now no doubt of the fact. He himself went to bed early and slept soundly, as a man with a good conscience is entitled to do. But the boy's mother must have known the hours he kept, yet she had said nothing. This made the matter all the blacker. The father felt that mother and son were leagued against him. He had been too lenient. Now he would go to the root of things. The young man would speedily change his ways or take the consequences. There would be no half measures.

Poor old Mrs. Saunders saw the moment her husband came in that there was a storm brewing, and a wild fear arose in her heart that her boy was the cause. The first words of the old man settled the question.

"What time did Richard come in last night?"

"I—I don't know," she hesitated. "Shuffling," her husband always called it. She had been a buffer between father and son since Dick was a child.

"Why don't you know? Who let him in?"

She sighed. The secret had long weighed upon her, and she felt it would come at some hapless moment.

"He has a key," she said at last. The old man glared in speechless amazement. In his angriest mood he had never suspected anything so bad as this.

"A key! How long has he had a key?"

"About six months. He did not want to disturb us."

"He is very thoughtful. Where does he spend his nights?"

"I don't know. He tells me he belongs to a club, where he takes some kind of exercise."

"Did he tell you he exercised with cards? Did he say it was a gambling club?"

"I don't believe it is. I am sure Dick doesn't gamble. Dick is a good boy, father."

"A precious lot you know about it evidently. Do you think his employer, Banker Hammond, has any idea his clerk belongs to a gambling club?"

"I am sure I don't know. Is there anything wrong? Has any one been speaking to you about Dick?"

"Yes, and to his credit."

"Oh, dear!" cried the mother in anguish. "Was it Mr. Hammond?"

"I have never spoken to Hammond in my life," said the old man, relenting a little when he saw how troubled his wife was. "No; I propose to stop this club business before it gets to the banker's ears that one of his clerks is a nightly attendant there. You will see Robert when he comes home this evening. Tell him I wish to have a word or two with him tonight. He is to wait for me here. I will be in shortly after he has his supper."

"You will not be harsh with him, father. Remember, he is a young man now, so please, please advise and do not threaten. Angry words can do no good."

"I will do my duty," said the old man uncompromisingly.

Gentle Mrs. Saunders sighed, for she well knew the phrase about duty. It was a sure prelude to domestic trouble. When the old gentleman undertook to do his duty, he nailed his flag to the mast.

"See that he waits for me tonight," was the parting shot as the old man closed the door behind him.

Mrs. Saunders had had her share of trouble in the world, as every woman must who lives with a cantankerous man. When she could save her son a harsh word, or even a blow, she was content to take either uncomplainingly. The old man's severity had put him out of touch with his son. Dick sullenly resented his boyhood of continual fear. During recent years, when fear had gradually diminished and finally disappeared, he was somewhat troubled to find that the natural affection which a son should have for his father had vanished with it. He had, on several occasions, made half hearted attempts at a better understanding, but these attempts had unfortunately fallen on inopportune moments, when the old man was not particularly gracious toward the world in general, and latterly there had been silence between the two. The young man avoided his father as much as possible. He would not have remained at home had it not been for his mother. Her steady, unwavering affection for him, her belief in him, and the remembrance of how she had stood up for him, especially when he was in the wrong, had bound her to him with bonds soft as silk and strong as steel. He often felt it would be a pleasure to go wrong, merely to refute his father's ideas regarding the way a child should be brought up. Yet Dick had a sort of admiration for the old man, whose many good qualities were somewhat overshadowed by his brutal temper.

When Richard came home that evening, he had his supper alone, as was usual with him. Mrs. Saunders drew her chair near the table, and while the meal went on she talked of many things, but avoided the subject uppermost in her mind, which she postponed until the last moment. Perhaps after all she would not need to ask him to stay. He might remain of his own accord. She watched him narrowly as she talked and saw with alarm that there was anxiety in his face. Some care was worrying him, and she yearned to have him confide his trouble to her. And yet she talked and talked of other things. She noticed that he made but a poor pretense of eating, and that he allowed her to talk while he made few replies, and was absentmindedly. At last he pushed his chair with a laugh that sounded mother," he said, "what is it? Is there a row on, or is it mere looming in the horizon? Has the lot of creation?"

"Hush, Dick! You mustn't talk that way. There is nothing much in the matter, I hope. I want to speak with you about your club."

Dick looked sharply at his mother for a moment; then he said: "Well, what does father want to know about the club? Does he wish to join?"

"I didn't say you father!"

"No, you didn't say it; but, my dear mother, you are as transparent as glass. I can see right through you and away beyond. Now, somebody has been talking to father about the club, and he is on the warpath. Well, what does he want to know?"

"He said it was a gambling club."

"Right for once."

"Oh, Dick, is it?"

"Certainly it is. Most clubs are gambling clubs and drinking clubs. I don't suppose the True Blues gamble more than others, but I'll bet they don't gamble any less."

"Oh, Dick, Dick, I'm sorry to hear that. And Dick, my darling boy, do you?"

"Do I gamble, mother? No, I don't. I know you'll believe me, though the old man won't. But it's true, nevertheless."

"I—I don't know," she hesitated. "Shuffling," her husband always called it. She had been a buffer between father and son since Dick was a child.

fore she could say anything more, leaving her sitting there with folded hands to await, with her customary patience and just a trifle of apprehension, the coming of her husband. There was no mistaking the heavy footfall. Mrs. Saunders smiled sadly as she heard it, remembering that Dick had said once that, even if he were safe within the gates of paradise, the sound of his father's footsteps would make the chills run up his backbone. She had reproved the levity of the remark at the time, but she often thought of it, especially when she knew there was trouble ahead—as there usually was.

"Where's Richard? Isn't he home yet?" were the old man's first words.

"He has been home, but he had to go out again. He had an appointment."

"Did you tell him I wanted to speak with him?"

"Yes, and he said he would stay home tomorrow night."

"Did he know that I said tonight?"

"I'm sure that I told him you."

"Don't shuffle, now. He either knew or did not. Which is it?"

"Yes, he knew, but he thought it might not be urgent and he—"

"That will do. Where is his appointment?"

"At the club, I think."

"Ah-h-h!" The old man dwelt on the exclamation as if he had at last drawn out the reluctant worst.

"Did he say when he would be home?"

"No."

"Very well. I will wait half an hour for him, and if he is not in by that time I will go to his club and have my talk with him there."

Old Mr. Saunders sat grimly down with his hat still on and crossed his hands over the knob of his stout walking stick, watching the clock that ticked slowly against the wall. Under these distressing circumstances the old woman lost her presence of mind and did the very thing she should not have done. She should have agreed with him, but instead of that she opposed the plan and so made it inevitable. It would be a cruel thing, she said, to shame their son before his friends, to make him a laughing stock among his acquaintances. Whatever was to be said could be said as well tomorrow night as tonight, and that in their own home, where, at least, no stranger would overhear. As the old man made no answer, but silently watched the clock, she became almost indignant with him. She felt she was culpable in entertaining even the suspicion of such a feeling against her lawful husband, but it did seem to her that he was not acting judiciously toward Dick. She hoped she might turn his resentment from their son to herself and would have welcomed any outburst that would be directed against her alone. In this excited state, being brought, as it were, to bay, she had the temerity to say:

"You were wrong about one thing, and you may also be wrong in thinking Dick—in what you think about Dick."

The old man darted one lowering look at her, and though she trembled she welcomed the glance as indicating the success of her red herring.

"What was I wrong about?"

"You were wrong—Mr. Hammond knows Dick is a member of the club. He is a member himself, and he insisted that Dick join. That's why he raised his salary."

"A likely story! Who told you that?"

"Dick told me himself."

"And you believe it, of course." Saunders laughed in a sneering, cynical sort of way and resumed his scrutiny of the clock. The old woman gave up the fight and began to weep silently, hoping, but in vain, to hear the light step of her son approaching the door. The clock struck the hour. The old man rose without a word, drew his hat farther over his brow and left the house.

Up to the last moment Mrs. Saunders hardly believed her husband would carry out his threat. Now, when she realized he was determined, she had one wild thought of flying to the club and warning her son. A moment's consideration put that idea out of the question. She called the serving maid, who came, as it seemed to the anxious woman, with exasperating deliberation.

"Jane," she cried, "do you know where the Athletic club is? Do you know where Center street is?"

Jane knew neither club nor locality.

"I want a message taken there to Dick, and it must go quickly. Don't you think you could run there?"

"It would be quicker to telegraph, ma'am," said Jane, who was not anxious to run anywhere. "There's telegraph paper in Mr. Richard's room, and the office is just round the corner."

"That's it, Jane. I'm glad you thought of it. Get me a telegraph form. Do make haste."

She wrote with a trembling hand as plainly as she could, so that her son might have no difficulty in reading: Richard Saunders, Athletic Club, Center Street.

Your father is coming to see you. He will be at the club before half an hour.

"There is no need to sign it; he will know his mother's writing," said Mrs. Saunders as she handed the message and the money to Jane, and Jane made no comment, for she knew as little of telegraphing as did her mistress. Then the old woman, having done her best, prayed that the telegram might arrive before her husband, and her prayer was answered, for electricity is more speedy than an old man's legs.

Meanwhile Mr. Saunders strode along from the suburb to the city. His stout stick struck the stone pavement with a sharp click that sounded in the still, frosty night air almost like a pistol shot. He would show both his wife and his son that he was not too old to be master in his own house. He talked angrily to himself as he went along and was wroth to find his anger lessening as he neared his destination. Anger must be very just to hold its own during a brisk walk in evening air that is cool and sweet.

Mr. Saunders was somewhat abashed to find the club building a much more imposing edifice than he had expected.

He looked at his watch, and it was half past eight. He had time to spare, but he did not want to wait. He went straight to the door, unlocked it, and entered.

"What time is it?" he asked of the porter.

"Half past eight, sir."

"Where is Mr. Hammond?"

"In his study, sir."

"Thank you. I will wait here."

WINTER GOWNS.

What the Market Offers in Material and Style.

What shall the woman of moderate means select for a winter street gown for general use? It must be something neat, pretty, not expensive, durable and appropriate. To the woman of moderate means the purchase of a gown of any kind is an event, and an important one, for if she makes a mistake or is cheated she must abide by the result. She cannot throw away her costume and buy another.

Let us see what the mode and the market offer that are suitable in all respects. Crepons are first in mind—woolen crepons, which are serviceable and fashionable. Serges are an old stand by, but everybody has had innumerable serge gowns and would like a change. Cashmere is coming in again and is as useful as could be desired, but rather thin for cold weather. Boucle goods are fashionable, but somewhat costly in good qualities and inclined to pull out and look dragged. Diagonals are really desirable and make up very prettily, while covert cloth is ideal for tailor made gowns.

As for colors, blue, violet, green, brown or black may be chosen, with a certainty of being in the mode. Black braid, not

SKIRT BINDINGS.

Many Kinds, but Most of Them Are Unsatisfactory.

One of the most disagreeable items in the care of the wardrobe is the rebinding of walking skirts, and it has to be done very frequently. The skirt is full of dust and smells of the street, no matter how well it has been cared for, and the process of ripping off the old binding and putting on the new is a tedious one. There are various kinds of bindings for sale, but some of those which seem most substantial and alluring are in reality least serviceable. There is a kind of velvet inclosing a cord which makes a nice finish for the bottom of a skirt so long as the skirt does not become damp, but moisture shrinks the cord and puckers the edge of the skirt as a consequence, and the whole thing has to come off again. There is another kind of binding with a rubber cylinder in it which cannot shrink, but it can break and does so, leaving unsightly gaps and uneven places, and it in turn has to come off. Plain velvet or velvet lined with sheet rubber is the best and most durable, for there is nothing to shrink or break in these two.

Braid is again fashionable, and it is fortunate for the economically disposed that it is so, for skirts that have become defaced by mud or moisture around the edge may be refreshed and the injury concealed by the addition of a band of wide braid around the foot. Children's dresses that have become too short may also be lengthened by the width of the braid or may be pieced down with goods like themselves, the seam being concealed by a band of braid.

The illustration shows a costume of deep blue faille. There are fans let in at each side of the bodice, and the skirt is trimmed around the foot with a narrow band of white satin, surmounted by a scalloped line of black velvet, and there are black velvet applications at the hips. The close bodice is open in front over a plastron of white silk laid in crosswise plaits. The edges of the bodice are finished with white satin and scalloped bands of black velvet. There is a silver button at the waist, and the bodice collar is lined with white satin. The sleeves are slashed at the top over puffs of white silk, across which are arranged white satin ribbons fastened by silver buttons.

JEWELRY NOTIONS.

Rings and Their Significance—Shoes, Buckles and Buttons.

An engagement ring in France is usually set with a sapphire, which signifies eternal love. It is a pretty idea, but eternities differ in length. Every stone has its own meaning, favorable or unfavorable. The emerald and the opal, particularly the latter, are considered unlucky, as everybody knows. The topaz, which is only semiprecious, gives good fortune. The ring of Gyges was set with a topaz, and he was certainly fortunate, for he could become invisible at will and so escape bores and listen to other people's secrets. Coral is a defense against ill luck and shares with pearls and turquoises the questionable privilege of losing its beauty when its owner is out of health. Jewels of gold give wisdom, although whether they retain this peculiarity when they are

WHITE FELT HAT.

In a hog's snout is not stated. Jewels of silver induce extravagance, and it is certainly true that the more silver one has the more one is likely to spend.

Metal and jeweled belts seem to be enjoying a decided vogue abroad. Belts of satin, silk or kid are embroidered with gold, silver or steel in the form of spangles, beads and cabochons and are fastened with paste or other buckles of brilliancy.

Buttons are quite as fashionable as ever and will be for a long time to come. They are as elaborate as pieces of jewelry, and two or three of these works of art add much to the appearance of a gown.

The illustration given today shows a hat of white felt with a medium wide, curling brim. It is bound with black velvet around the edge and has a black velvet band around the crown, finishing with a flat bow on the left side. A cluster of white coq feathers is arranged above the bow and secured by a large paste buckle.

No Guess Necessary....

THE LEADER doesn't need to be guessed about. THE LEADER is above reproach as a store for the people and of the people. It has not its equal. THE LEADER is not a concern to sell out every day and humbug the people with bankrupt stocks. It has come among you to be permanent. THE LEADER is not a concern to change the prices on goods every day. Rock bottom prices were made on all articles when the doors were first thrown open to public patronage and so they have remained. THE LEADER buys its goods and pays for them without the assistance of any one. THE LEADER has not come here to hoodwink people but rather to gain their confidence by honest methods.
There is no purchasing place in Southern Wisconsin where business is done more honorably and whose business principles are better formed than THE LEADER'S. Every article in the stock is guaranteed in every manner, both price and quality. We buy direct from the best factories in existence and buy for cash. The middleman's profit is saved and the public derive the benefit.

THE LEADER CARRIES IN STOCK

Hardware, Tinware, Graniteware, Woodenware, Fiberware, Glassware, Crockery, Cutlery,
Cooking Utensils, Paints, Brushes, Soaps,
Sunshine Stoves and Ranges, Etc., Etc.,

And guarantees you lower prices than you can find elsewhere. We have a line of seventy-five different patterns of Stoves and Ranges; with everyone a written guarantee against fault of any kind. Take them home, set them up, try them thoroughly, and, if not exactly as represented bring them back, and you get your money back. THE LEADER has employed one of the best hardware and stove men in Southern Wisconsin--a lifetime experience in the business--Mr. Adam Sanner. He has entire charge of this department.

The Leader Towers above Competition

Like a steeple alongside of a small gable. It enjoys public confidence which is most necessary for the carrying on of a successful business. It is not afraid of being broken up at any time, and could, should necessity demand, produce $25,000.00 on the shortest notice. All THE LEADER asks of buyers is a comparison of goods and prices before making purchases. There will be no guess work as to where to buy goods. Perfect satisfaction is guaranteed in every way whether the purchase be 1c or $100.00. If at any time you have bought any article at THE LEADER and it has not met most heartily with your approval bring it back and get your money refunded. We depend upon the public for patronage, therefore the public will be well treated by us.
You will find us in the future as in the past as anxious to do all in our power in the trade line to merit your good opinion. You will always find our prices 25% to 40% lower than the lowest on all commodities. You'll find us "new timber." "Dead lumber saws no wood."
